

FOEGEN, T. / R. WARREN, EDS.: GRAECO-ROMAN ANTIQUITY AND THE IDEA OF NATIONALISM IN THE 19TH CENTURY. CASE STUDIES

- Graeco-Roman Antiquity and the Idea of Nationalism in the Nineteenth Century: Introduction · Fögen, Thorsten / Warren, Richard
- Classical Ideals and the Formation of Modern Nations in Europe · Smith, Anthony D.
- Making Nations in the Image of Greece: Classical Greek Conceptions of the Body in the Construction of National Identity in Nineteenth-Century England, France and Germany · Leoussi, Athena S.
- 'Je viens comme Thémistocle': Napoleon and National Identity after Waterloo · Rood, Tim
- The Emperor's Caesar: Napoleon III, Karl Marx and the History of Julius Caesar · Richardson, Edmund
- Faithful unto Death: Militarism, Masculinity and National Identity in Victorian Britain · Barrow, Rosemary
- Constructing the Nation and Empire: Victorian and Edwardian Images of the Building of Roman Fortifications · Hingley, Richard
- Henry Courteney Selous' Boadicea and the Westminster Cartoon Competition · Warren, Richard
- A Nation Finds its People: Friedrich Kohlrausch, New Readers and Readings of Tacitus' Germania and the Rise of a Popular German Nationalism · Krebs, Christopher B.
- Hermann the German: Nineteenth-Century Monuments and Histories · Sommer, Michael
- Arminius in Bohemia: Two Uses of Tacitus in Czech Art · Warren, Richard
- Classical Translations and Strands of Irish Nationalism · O'Higgins, Laurie