

BROPHY, A. L.: UNIVERSITY, COURT, AND SLAVE. PROSLAVERY ACADEMIC THOUGHT AND SOUTHERN JURISPRUDENCE, 1831-1861

Preface

Introduction

Part I: The Contours of Academic Proslavery Thought

1. The Rebel and the Professor: Nat Turner and Thomas Dew
2. Proslavery Academic Thought in the 1840s and 1850s
3. The Southern Scholar: College Literary Addresses
4. Brown University's President Confronts Slavery
5. The Chancellor, the Slave, and the Student

Part II: Connecting Moral Philosophy and Legal Thought

6. The Fugitive Slave Act of 1850: The Grammar of Proslavery Thought
7. The Novelist and the Jurist: Harriet Beecher Stowe's Jurisprudence of Sentiment

Part III: The Core of Southern Legal Thought

8. Beyond State v. Mann: Thomas Ruffin's Jurisprudence
9. Joseph Henry Lumpkin: Industrialism and Slavery in the Old South
10. Proslavery Jurisprudence: Thomas Reade Rootes Cobb's An Inquiry Into the Law of Negro Slavery
11. "The dictate of a wise policy ": Precedent, Utility, Progress, Humanity, and the Empirical in Antebellum Jurisprudence
12. Slavery, Property, and Constitutionalism in the Secession Debates