

Contents

Francesca Masini, Simone Mattiola and Steve Pepper
Exploring complex lexemes cross-linguistically — 1

Part 1: Form (morphosyntactic strategies)

Steve Pepper

Defining and typologizing binominal lexemes — 23

Denis Creissels

Binominals and construct marking — 73

Jakob Lesage

Compounds and other nominal modifier constructions in Pama-Nyungan languages — 103

Marie-Elaine van Egmond

New types of binominal lexeme in Anindilyakwa (Australia) — 153

Åshild Næss

Binominals in Äiwoo: Compounds, possessive constructions, and transitional cases — 181

Bożena Cetnarowska

NN.GEN and NAREL juxtapositions in Polish: Syntactic schemas employed in building phrasal nouns — 213

Françoise Rose and An Van Linden

The derivational use of classifiers in Western Amazonia — 237

Chiara Naccarato and Shanshan Huang

Binominals denoting instruments: A contrastive perspective — 277

Part 2: Meaning (semantic relations)

Steve Pepper

Hatcher-Bourque: Towards a reusable classification of semantic relations — 305

László Károly

Binominal strategies and semantic correlations in Turkic languages — 355

Aslı Gürer

A classification of compounds in Karachay-Balkar — 381

Polina Pleshak

Binominal lexemes in Moksha and Hill Mari — 401

Part 3: Acquisition

Maria Rosenberg

Binominals and potential competitors in language development: Evidence from Swedish — 431

List of contributors — 463

Index of Subjects — 465

Index of Languages — 471