

Contents

Acknowledgments — V

Sarit Kattan Gribetz and Lynn Kaye

Time: How and For Whom? — 1

Part I: Time: An Interdisciplinary Overture

Sarit Kattan Gribetz and Lynn Kaye

1 Thinking Temporally Today — 5

Sarit Kattan Gribetz and Lynn Kaye

2 What Does it Mean that Time is Culturally Constructed, Historically Contingent, and Socially Differentiated? — 21

Sarit Kattan Gribetz and Lynn Kaye

3 Time in Disciplinary and Interdisciplinary Perspective — 53

Part II: Time Across Disciplines: Selected Essays

Sarit Kattan Gribetz and Lynn Kaye

Introduction to Part II — 85

Megan Meuti

4 Circadian and Seasonal Clocks in Insects and Other Organisms — 91

Johanna Sellman

5 The Queue as Dystopia — 103

Hannah Kosstrin

6 Temporal Tactility in Trisha Brown's Locus (1975) — 115

Katherine Elkins

7 Proust's Novel Time — 127

Marti Chaatsmith and Christine Ballengee Morris

8 Time and the Earthworks — 139

Melissa Anne-Marie Curley

9 All the Time There Is: Cloth Sack as a Buddhist Metaphor for Time — 153

Michal Raizen

10 The Temporalities of Sound in Elia Suleiman's *The Time
That Remains* — 163

Michael Jäckel

11 Media and the Cultivation of Time — 171

Andréa G. Grottoli

12 Coral Reefs and Climate Change: We Are Running Out of Time — 181

List of Contributors — 191

Index — 195