

Contents

Acknowledgments — 7

Summary — 8

Introduction

Mara-Johanna Kölmel and Ursula Ströbele — 9

Art Meets Science and Technology

Karin Sander — 26

Historical Precursors

“Curious Machines”

Reproducing Sculpture via Machine and Its Modus of Display in the Nineteenth Century

Buket Altinoba — 37

The Aesthetics of (Digital) Machine Sculpture

Automatization, Mechanization, and Mathematization in Minimal, Serial, Conceptual, and Computer Art

Michael Rottmann — 58

Between the Virtual and the Physical: Material Reflections

Sculpting Digital Realities

Notes on Truth to Materials, the Aesthetic Limit, Site-Specificity and 3D-Printing

Ursula Ströbele — 83

(IM)MATERIALS—(IM)MATERIALITIES—(IM)MATERIALIZATIONS

Some Thoughts on the Analogital Condition(s) of the Sculptural

Verena Kuni — 102

Considering Skawennati's Celestial Trees

Sculpture Between the Virtual and the Physical

Sasha Sobrino — 119

When the Virtual Becomes Tangible

Tracing Design, Architecture, and Art at the Beginning of the Twenty-First Century

Alexandra Weigand — 138

Reclaiming Monumentality

The Twenty-First-Century Monuments

Reflections on Nomadic and Intermedial Monumentality

Mara-Johanna Kölmel — 161

Confederate Monument 2.0

Mary Ellen Carroll at Prospect.3

Elizabeth Anne Johnson — 184

The Expanded Field of Digital Sculpture and the Cybernetic Condition

Media Sculpture

The Cybernetic Condition

Claudia Giannetti — 201

Sculpture in the Digitally Expanded Field

Jens Schröter — 217

Credits — 235

Biographies — 239