

Contents

Christian Gerlach

Introduction: Social histories of persecution and mass violence — 1

Labor

Hilmar Kaiser

Strategies of survival: Genocide and Armenian deportee labor, 1915–1918 — 17

Christian Gerlach

Comparing Jewish labor in Poland, 1942–1945, and Armenian labor in the Ottoman Empire, 1915–1918 — 35

Family

Dalia Ofer

The family under duress: A male perspective — 53

Natalia Aleksion

“He was in our home like our own child”: Discourses of surrogacy and family relations after the Holocaust — 71

Displacement

Masha Cerovic

Strangers in a strange land: Refugees in Belarusian society under German occupation (1941–1944) — 93

Andreas Zeman

Caught between the guerrilla and the colonial state: Refugee life in Northern Mozambique during the Independence War (1964–1974) — 115

Space

Tim Cole

Space and place: Placing everyday life during the Holocaust — 141

Nikita Hock

Hiding in the attic: Sounds and social situation — 157

Collective action

Janina Wurbs

Auditory quarrels, rage and collective action: A street singer and his audience within the web of the ghetto society — 185

Anna Shternshis

People Fell Like Flies*: How Yiddish songs document history and collective action during the Holocaust in the Soviet Union — 197

Mass violence as a social process

Jason Tingle

A local history of the Sobibór death camp and Nazi occupation — 225

Society after violence

Anna Ohannessian-Charpin

Orphans building homes: Forgotten remnants of the Armenian deportations in South Jordan — 245

List of authors — 267

Index — 269