

Contents

General Introduction — 1

Chapter 1

Natural Theology — 16

- 1 Introduction — 16
- 2 Creation as a web of meaning — 17
- 3 Biblical and late antique natural theology — 21
- 4 The notion of sign — 27
- 4.1 Biblical background — 28
- 4.2 Patristic developments — 29
- 4.3 The Qur'ānic 'āyāt: the end of a linguistic puzzle? — 33
- 5 Qur'ānic teleology — 36
- 5.1 Negative teleology: Creation is not purposeless! — 36
- 5.2 Affirmative teleology: Creation as a training ground — 40
- 6 The Classroom of Creation — 43
- 7 A scholastic version of Adam naming the animals — 50
- 8 Conclusion — 54

Chapter 2

Contemplation: Between Theory and Practice — 55

- 1 Introduction — 55
- 2 The necessity of divine grace — 56
- 3 The condition of purity — 59
- 3.1 The role of the heart — 62
- 3.2 The heart and the sense of sight — 64
- 3.3 Healing the heart — 70
- 4 Remembering God — 71
- 4.1 Remembering God in the Qur'ān — 73
- 4.2 Late antique roots of the notion — 75
- 4.3 Shared wordings in the illustration of the remembrance of God — 79
- 4.4 Reading as an ascetic practice — 81
- 5 Divine knowledge — 84
- 5.1 Esoteric knowledge — 84
- 5.2 Limited investigation — 86
- 5.3 Knowledge of the limit — 90
- 6 Seeking the face of God — 93
- 7 Conclusion — 96

Chapter 3

Doctrine of Creation — 99

- 1 Introduction — 99
- 2 Creatorship and createdness — 100
 - 2.1 Polemics on created creators — 100
 - 2.2 On being ʿibād of God — 106
 - 2.3 Disarray in heaven and earth — 108
- 3 Creation out of matter vs. Creation out of nothing — 109
 - 3.1 The antique backdrop — 110
 - 3.2 The vocabulary of “creation” in the Qurʾān — 113
 - 3.3 Kun fa-yakūn — 118
 - 3.4 “I created you before, when you were nothing” — 122
 - 3.5 “Where they created from no thing?” — 125
 - 3.6 A universe out of “formless matter”? — 126
 - 3.7 A sky made of smoke — 128
- 4 Creation and Providence — 130
 - 4.1 A purposeful creation — 131
 - 4.2 Creating in truth — 133
 - 4.3 Polemics on the vain creation — 138
- 5 Conclusion — 140

Chapter 4

Divine Economy and Continuous Creation — 143

- 1 Introduction — 143
- 2 A sky without columns — 144
- 3 Divine powers — 148
 - 3.1 Divine permission — 150
 - 3.2 Divine command and the divine economy — 151
- 4 Focus on Q 16:77–79 — 155
 - 4.1 The blink of an eye and childbirth — 155
 - 4.2 The bird suspended in the air of the sky — 158
- 5 Age of the world and sabbatical rest — 162
- 6 Conclusion — 170

Chapter 5

On the Creation of the Heavens — 172

- 1 Introduction — 172
- 2 A world created in six days — 172
 - 2.1 Creation of heaven and earth — 174
 - 2.2 Heaven or earth first? — 177

3	Skies, heavens, firmament —	180
3.1	Expanse vs. boundary —	180
3.2	Sky vs. Firmament —	181
3.3	Seven heavens —	185
3.4	Mirroring heavens and earth: the seven earths of the Qur'ān —	194
4	Cosmological imagery —	196
4.1	Architectural metaphors —	197
4.2	A scale balancing in the middle of nowhere —	205
5	Conclusion —	210

Chapter 6

On the Creation of Angels and Men — 212

1	Introduction —	212
2	Creation of angels —	212
2.1	Time of angelic creation —	212
2.2	Angels and elements —	218
2.3	Hierarchy of angels —	220
2.4	Angels and the cosmos —	223
2.5	God's sons —	228
2.6	God's Daughters —	231
3	Creation of mankind —	234
3.1	Man made from clay —	234
3.2	Creation of man: a multistep process —	237
3.3	Creating man with speech —	238
3.4	Man and divine spirit —	242
3.5	Assembling body and soul —	244
4	Conclusion —	245

General Conclusion — 247

Bibliography — 254

Indexes — 275

