Preface

This book is a slightly revised and extended version of my doctoral dissertation, which I completed at the Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich in early 2020.

I incurred many debts of gratitude in writing this book. First and foremost, I thank my PhD supervisor Prof. Dr. Christof Schuler for his invaluable support, guidance and teaching throughout my doctoral studies. I benefited greatly from his mentorship and supervision. This book would certainly not have been the same without his contribution, corrections and constructive criticism.

I have been generously supported by various institutions during the evolution of this work into a thesis first and then a monograph. The Suna & İnan Kırac Research Center for Mediterranean Civilizations (AKMED), the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD), and the Scientific and Technological Research Council of Türkiye (TÜBİTAK) granted funding for my research and doctoral studies in Germany.¹ Die Kommission für Alte Geschichte und Epigraphik des Deutschen Archäologischen Instituts in Munich (AEK/DAI), made me a research assistant, and later, a researcher. Here I profited (and I still do) from intellectual exchanges not only with colleagues and experienced professors, among whom I must particularly mention Prof. Dr. Michael Wörrle, Prof. Dr. Rudolf Haensch, Prof. Dr. Johannes Nollé, Dr. Sophia Bönisch-Meyer and Uni.-Prof. Dr. des. Matthias Stern, but also with visiting scholars, who all kindly contributed to this book in various ways. I must, of course, thank the wonderful librarian of the Kommission, Regina Gruber, who made sure that I quickly obtained every publication I needed for my research. I commemorate and thank Dr. Ursula Vedder, who, with her most welcoming personality, enabled me a very smooth start at the Kommission, but unfortunately did not live to see the completion of my book.

I received support from a number of other scholars to whom I would also like to express my gratitude. Diether Schürer generously gave me advice on the epichoric period and the inscriptions in Lycian. Prof. Dr. Fatih Onur kindly assisted me in questions related to the historical geography of Lycia and created one of the maps used in this study. Assoc. Prof. Dr. Hüseyin Sami Öztürk brought to my attention some important publications relevant for my research. Prof. Peter Thonemann read portions of Chapter 2 and gave me helpful advice. He also generously shared with me some of his unpublished work that was relevant to my study. Prof. Dr. Kaja Harter-Uibopuu has been an important support and advisor to me on several occasions.

In the course of my research, I had the opportunity to present parts of my work to a wider audience. In addition to the presentations I gave at the internal meetings of AEK/DAI, I also attended two symposia: the “Dokument und Recht. Workshop zur Rechtsgeschichte der griechisch-römischen Welt. 9-10 Februar 2017, München” organised by the Kommission für Alte Geschichte und Epigraphik des DAI and the Leopold-Wenger-Institut für Rechtsgeschichte der LMU München where I gave a lecture titled “Legal Aspects of Marriages between Roman Citizens and peregrini in the Roman East”; and the “6th International Meeting of Young Historians of Ancient Greek Law. September 6-7, 2018, Athens” organised by the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens where I gave a lecture titled “Adoption by Women in Roman Lycia”. I am grateful to the organisers of these events for giving me the opportunity to share parts of my research with scholars from related fields and to receive useful feedback.

I owe great thanks to the series editors Prof. Adele C. Scafuro and Prof. John Bodel, and the anonymous reviewers of this book, as well as to Prof. Dr. Martin Zimmermann and Prof. Dr. Oğuz Tekin, who participated in my PhD examination committee, for their helpful advice and constructive criticism. I am grateful to Dr. Marcus Chin for patiently proofreading my manuscript, and not only for correcting and improving its English, but also for providing helpful remarks. I thank Giulia Moriconi, the associate editor for Classics at Brill, and Theo Joppe, the production editor on behalf of Brill, for their support throughout the publication process. Any remaining errors in this book are, of course, solely mine.

Although she did not witness the writing of this book, I remember Dr. Filiz Dönmez-Öztürk, who tragically passed away at a very young age in 2014, and thank her for encouraging and inspiring me on my academic journey.

Last but not least, I thank my parents and my whole family for always being there for me and supporting me even in my most unconventional decisions. I thank, in particular, sevgili eşim Zeki Devrim Aslan and canum oğlum Kaan Aslan, who followed me from Istanbul to Munich so that I could write this book, for their unlimited support. This book on families is dedicated to them.
